Statement on procurement policy
of Electronic Information Service National Programme

Electronic Information Service National Programme, operating in the Library and Information Centre of the Hungarian Academy of Sciences, as leader of the national academic library consortium, is committed to provide high quality services for the Hungarian research community.

There are almost two hundred libraries participating in the project: universities, research centres, special libraries, hospitals, museums, and public libraries, archives as well. As the contracting authority, EIS Department is in charge of licensing in the name and on behalf of the member institutions, in the form of negotiated public procurement contract award procedures without prior public notice.

It is the mission of EIS to use public funds in the most transparent and cost effective way, always considering the expectations of the Hungarian research community. Being a vendor-neutral organization, EIS prefers contracting directly with the publisher or the sole exclusive distributor of each database, journal collection, e-book collection or other electronic content.
